

A phenomenal teacher, a preacher of morality.

V. JAYANTHI

Email id: jai.yanthi@gmail.com

Part Time Ph.D. scholar

Mobile: 9952612702

Bharathiar University, Coimbatore.

Teaching is not just a profession or job or an opportunity to earn. Teachers are similar to soldier needs to live a sacrificial life. A teacher is like a ladder, helps people climb over them without changing their position. A teacher is the role model for any professionals of the future. A doctor, an engineer, a pilot, a soldier, a chief, a manager also wants to be a master of their profession as like their teacher. Trying to be passionate about their jobs, this inspiration they will get from their teachers. Especially a language teacher always has such an opportunity to preach their students about the difference between the good and bad, the roles need to be played by the students towards the society and even the basic manners.

As a kid, every child assumes their father as the biggest role model. As they start their schooling, they always get inspired by their teacher, at least one teacher in their span as a student. They would not accept any person's view that is contrary to their teachers view not even their father's view. They always assume that their teachers are always right even if they are not. This factor is crucial as the responsibility of the teacher goes high; as he is in charge of a student character building apart from career building. And a teacher as mentioned earlier, he is like a soldier to sacrifice his life for the betterment of the society. Sacrifices mean a teacher should live like an example to his students, as the word teacher is divine.

The teacher has the opportunity to address a mass number of students every year in their very classroom; this is a platform for responsibility and cultivation of responsible good citizens for society. Every student in the class is not the same, students of different culture, economic background, religion and attitude will be studying. Their level of understanding will be different from every student.

In general, students can be classified into four types, the most attentive, the less attentive, the irregular and the disobedient. The reasons for these types of students may vary but the core classification remains the same. A teacher of any subject will have their own style and approach inside the classroom; they might follow the pattern and syllabus prescribed to them. The principles and nature of a teacher are unique, they are not just a trainer beyond it, and it is their moral responsibility to groom a student to the requirement of the grooming community. A new system or the modernizing world may fail to retain the basic ethics of living.

The order can be brought back only by the grooming generation, thus it is important how they are groomed. A teacher, especially a language teacher has the opportunity to preach the social responsibility of their students. By the time, the well-trained students set into their career phase, their role should be predominantly important for modernizing society without destroying the nature of the environment.

The digital era has already done enough damages; to the society apart from its uses. This world made things easy for mankind as the effort taken to deliver the needs to them is unexplained. The canned water, door delivered food, online purchases from clothing to groceries, entertainment and even online education are readily available within four walls. The time required and the efforts taken in availing these comforts have minimised. The possessed digital era paves time for the people to entertain more than any other activities and it is also can be called as modern world slavery, where people are engaged to 9 to 12 hours in their job and to handle the stress, they entertain them more than ever with their smartphones and digital world. They kill quality time that meant for family, friends, social gathering and even sleep and appetite.

This destruction can be curtailed before the students get graduated with the help of counselling. But counselling is a treatment for a disease, whereas a quality lecture from a teacher is prevention, which is better than a cure. As already mentioned, the 4 types of students inside the classroom are the 4 types of people in society. Students are the wet clay can be moulded to the needs of a healthy society. The teachers are the essential element for students to convert into a responsible and resourceful for the wellbeing of the human race.

A student approximately spends 6 to 8 hours in an educational institution; apparently, students spend much more time with teachers than parents, especially parents of the digital world, who are themselves obsessed by the digital gadgets. Hence the teacher got more responsibility in grooming a student of any age till they settle with their career. Especially language teachers are meant for communication, manners and social ethics. A student with a good IQ isn't sufficient for the wellness of the society, social behaviour and attitude of the student delivers a good result.

In this digital era, lessons from the society might backfire, as this world clashes with ego, hatred, politics, poverty and crime. This egoistic environment will easily pollute the new-born generation in no time. To withstand these challenges, a mentor is required to guide this budding student's community and prosper their career to enhance the wellness of society.

References:

1. http://discovery.ucl.ac.uk/1475774/1/5.%20Bourn_Teachers%20as%20agents%5B1%5D.pdf
2. <https://study.com/blog/the-6-types-of-students-you-ll-have-in-your-first-class.html>
3. https://blog.cengage.com/top_blog/four-types-of-students-you-may-see-in-your-classroom/
4. <https://www.tsc.nsw.edu.au/tscnews/how-to-develop-positive-teacher-student-relationships>
5. https://research.acer.edu.au/cgi/viewcontent.cgi?article=1012&context=professional_dev